

Principal's Message

It is a pleasure to write a foreword for this the first yearbook of Bradford District High School. I should like to compliment the editor, the staff advisers, and their assistants, for the vision of what they wanted to accomplish and the determination and work that made this vision a reality. I should like to compliment also the pupils who prepared original material, some of it included in this book, much of it, not; the teachers who encouraged them, and those who sold advertising to make this book possible. All these reap a double benefit – the valuable experience in working co-operatively on a major undertaking, and the satisfaction of a job well done.

This yearbook is of particular interest to the graduating class, Grade XIII and Grade XII graduates who will not return. It will serve as a reminder of the days spent in this High School, happy ones we hope most of them have been; and it will grow more valuable as the years go by, when memory grows dimmer, when distance lends enchantment, and when the things we remember grow more and more rosy until they surpass the things of the present and much surpass what they actually were.

Your teachers have done their best to prepare you for the world you now face. They have sought to educate you – to draw out your minds and your personalities to wider interests and to the enrichment of your lives. But this process is never finished. It is our hope that you will go on learning, broadening, and fulfilling your aims. The school has done its part. We send you out with hope and faith. To you we present the challenge of the motto of the University of British Columbia 'Tuum Est' – It's Up to You.

History has been the first edition of the

Bradford High School rooms, and further have made efforts to ment, and participa

We on the yearbook publication as this ance of the teacher Miss Nolan.

The advertising ation received by continue to take a centre.

Although there